NEWSDEALERS DEMAND NAVAL VESSELS READY CALLS FOR 500,000 MEN GERMAN REVOLUTION

for any eventuality which the grim fu-ture may hold: Threaten Strike if Price Is Not Raised by Publishers.

New York, April 6.—After seeing most of their profits disappearing because of the high cost of living and finding themselves struggling for bare existence, newsdealers are demanding an increase in the price of newspapers from 1 to 2 cents in order that they may make some profit. That they intend to have the publishers grant this increase was disclosed last evening at a meeting of the United Newsdealers' and Stationers'

ture may hold:

Naval machinery operated at lightning speed throughout the night to mobilize the reserve units. The naval militia is being mobilized at navy yards acattered along the coasts. From the North Atlantic States they are assembling at Boston and New York, and from the South Atlantic territory they were hastening to Charleston, S. C., and Norfolk, Va. The orders addressed to the Pacific Coast States militia directed them to mobilize at San Francisco and Puget Sound yard. Two units of the naval militia, at least, will be concentrated at New Orleans.

of the Navy Department.
With the certainty that authorization will be given to increase still further the navy's enlisted quots, efforts were redoubled to rush enlistments, and recruiting corps at stations throughout the na-tion were enlarged to speed their task. Reports to Secretary Daniels last night showed unprecedented numbers of new recruits at both small and large stations. recruits at both small and large stations. Yesterday's record exceeded all others, even eclipsing the figures for Spanish war days. Up to 5 o'clock last night 714 applicants had been accepted. Complete reports for the day, officials said, would show not less than 1,000.

The patriotic ardor created by the navy's appeal for men was reflected in the offer of the Knoxville (Tenn.) Board of Trade vesterday to equip and operate of Trade yesterday to equip and operate a special train in a whirlwind tour through Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, and the Carolinas to secure recruits. The offer was made through Representative Austin, of Tennessee, and was accepted promptly by Secretary Daniels. The tender met with the hearty approval of naval officers. The special train will also be used to round up army recruits.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

These plans were laid before the Cabinet for its approval, and it provoked a discussion of the general policy which the nation shall assume in its attitude toward the other enemies of Germany. The problem of extending financial assistance to the allied powers will not be decided until the Federal Reserve Board and Secretary McAdoo, of the Treasury Department, have worked out a complete plan of For the District of Columbia and Maryland—Fair oday; Sunday partly overcast and cool, probably ecoming unsettled by Sunday night. Publicists of the world have maintained a conspiracy of silence on the coming German revolution because they are afraid to conjure up a sinister spectre and because they are repelled by a difline of conduct which German subjects in the United States must pursue. It forbids them to have arms, munitions, or explosives of any kind; wireless apficult and delicate subject. But there may be another and a more plausible reason for their silence, namely, that most people simply cannot believe in the very possibility of a German revolution. And if you press them to state their definite reasons for such a belief, you will probably find that all the arguments given ultimately come under the four following heads: paratus, aircraft, signaling devices, or codes, ciphers, or invisible writing in their possession. their possession.

When the conspiracy of lies and the conspiracy of silence come to an end, when the diplomatic intrigues, when the pan-Germanic plot are revealed in their naked and hideous horror, it will be clear, even to the blindest and dullest German mind, that this war was waged neither in defense of national existence nor in defense of national existence nor in defense of national interests.

Modern conditions are more favorable to the prospects of a popular rising than they were, say in 1789, in 1848, or in 1871.

The insurrection of the people of Berlin in 1848 nearly succeeded in establishing a German democracy. The proudest of the Prussian kings, the most intoxicated with dreams or delusions of absolute issued, the President and his Cabinet went into session on war plans. They received a mass of expert reports on the food supply of the nation, and considered various proposed plans for government control and regulation of the supplies necessary to sustain the civilian population through the long war years. After the Cabinet meeting it was said that this problem probably would be delegated in its entirety to the Council of National Defense and its advisory council, which have already organized a board to supervise the distribution of commodities to the civilian population.
